

Notes on the ROOTS Schedule and the Conference

Posted on November 14,2017 by lynx

We are all set for the conference on Thursday. We did some last minute changes to the schedule due to some speakers running into issues, but we can confirm almost all presentations. You may have noticed the ROOTS schedule. It's a bit shorter than DeepSec's, but both events are not competing. The review for ROOTS is a lot harder, because the presentation is about a scientific publication. This means your submission gets peer-reviewed and voted by the programme committee. We received some content more suitable for, let's say, standard events. This won't do, and this is why you see the best submissions of ROOTS published in the schedule.

All in all we are very glad to present you high quality presentations from speakers who really know information security. Enjoy! See you at DeepSec!

Posted in:Administrivia,Conference,Discussion | Tagged:DeepSec,ROOTs | With 0 comments